INVESTMENT STRATEGY
A combined strategy of investing in stocks and bonds, including their equivalent financial instruments, with the aim of outperforming fixed-income investment returns with a higher risk than the fixed income markets. This is achieved through the active portfolio management using a variety of investment objects such as collective investment undertakings, stocks, debt securities, derivatives or alternative investments. The strategic weight for asset classes other than debt securities is around 50%, but the share of these investments can vary between 30% and 70% of the assets depending on market conditions and other circumstances. This means that the proportions of fixed income, equities and alternative investments can vary significantly between periods. Proportion of alternative investments may represent up to 30% of the assets. Derivatives can be used to hedge against currency exchange rate change risk.
COMMENT
Global equity markets rebounded in Q2, and the value of investment direction also rose. Major US equity indices reached record highs, but the US dollar's biggest depreciation in a decade (-8.0% in 3 months) led to a moderate increase in euro returns. The uncertainty of US tariffs, and the variability of the level and application of taxes, caused significant stock market volatility at the beginning of Q2. Our strategic allocation and forward tactical plan of action are useful at such times. In times of market panics, we replenish our funds with cheaper shares according to our own rules, while in balanced funds we sell some bonds and buy shares. This is what we did in April this year. This is a short-term action which we have realised with a small profit and have returned to our normal portfolio structure. Part of the investment direction's assets are in alternative investments: private equity, private debt and real estate. This significantly reduces the price volatility of the investment basket but allows it to maintain a high return potential. While equity markets returned negatively in the first half of 2025, alternative investments in aggregate earned a modest positive return. Over the same period, direct investments in Baltic equities have also been profitable. In April, we returned a classic US ETF instead of an 'equal weight' fund in the US equities section. As markets recover, US technology stocks, which are fewer in the 'equal weight' fund, look more promising. In the second half of the last quarter, the primary bond market was very active, and we have added several new positions to the investment direction's portfolio accordingly. Active participation in the market during the initial placement provides an opportunity to acquire new issues at attractive yields and earn additional returns. The total yield of the bond portfolio is currently above 4.0%.
